

MARRIAGE IS . . .

Marriage is a time of joining two Souls who started their journey
long before meeting each other.

Marriage is a time of those two Souls wanting to become only one Soul.

Marriage is not becoming one Soul.

Too bad, so sad!

Marriage is
the agreement of the two Souls to travel on the same Path, while at the same time, paradoxically, still preserving each Soul's separate Path.

Marriage is Magic!

Marriage is Love!

Marriages, however,
aren't made in heaven above, they're earthly things which need tending and work.

Marriage will last only if the two lovers work to become best friends.

Marriage will see
the two partners fall in and out of love, perhaps,
many times, but never out of like. "Like" is the lifeblood of all sacred marriages!

"Like" ain't love,
but with plenty of "Like" love has a chance.

Marriage will last and flourish only with a lot of BLOOD, SWEAT, & TEARS, all aimed at continued friendship, respect and Giving.

Staying Married,
which can only be achieved as if it is looked at
as a job of joy.

Our Spouse is not there to make us complete, to be whole or to feel OK.

Our Spouse is
there like a friend to share the day.

Marriage is not a nice fairy tale without a full compliment of goblins, dragons and ghouls .

Marriage is not a lasting establishment or an entity for a fool or those not willing to give and grow.

Marriage is remarkably a situation which is easily measured by the partners' effort, or lack thereof, for everyone to see.

Marriage is made easier by learning to laugh and not having to be right.

Marriage is a voyage and a journey of Friends.

Marriage is a pretty good way to learn about yourself.

Love is a verb requiring action, a journey, not a place.

YOUR MARRIAGE IS . . . ,
yes, it is.

Congratulations! Let your Souls Embrace . . .

POEMTRY & ODDE: Copyright 1993 by Philip E. Friberg, Clown Prince, Wizard Corporation of America, Important Stuff Department. [Written for Brides and Grooms and any "Old Married Folks" renewing their sacred vows.]